Race at Gould will target suicide stigmas, prevention

When Kristen Kimball of Bethel lost her brother, Ryan, to suicide in 2008, she was met largely with silence.

"People avoided talking to me about Ryan like the plague," she said last week. "It was so apparent that it made even some of my close friends uncomfortable. And I couldn't help but think that if he had died some other way, people wouldn't be so afraid to say things like, 'I was so sorry to hear about

Rvan. That seemed so unexpected! Did he struggle for a long time with his illness? I just recently read about this new research being done...'

None of that happened, and it really struck me." She also realized there is a hesitancy among people suffering from depression to seek help.

So as Kimball, a college counselor at Gould Academy, went through her own healing process over the past five years, she realized she could do some-

"Tar sands," signs, dog park/hoops await Bethel voters

By ALISON ALOISIO

At their June 12 town meeting, Bethel voters will finally have their say on several issues that have been studied and debated for months.

Dog park/basketball Voters will consider a trio of articles relating to the long-debated proposal for a dog park on Davis Park land.

The Planning Board has approved the plan for a privately-funded park, but because of opposition selectmen agreed to put the issue to a town vote. During that same time frame, a petition was submitted asking for a town meeting vote on a basketball court to be built on park be rejected. Selectmen, seeking to avoid an either/or choice, voted to instead establish a Recreational Facilities Committee to come up with an overall recreational facilities plan, including a dog park and a basketball court, and also seek town meeting approval for selectmen to accept donations to implement the committee's recommendations.

However, at the request of basketball petitioners, the dog park and the bas-ketball court questions will also appear individually on the warrant.

The committee article will be voted upon first,

It asks for approval to accept donations to implement committee recommendations, including but not limited to a dog park at an approved location; a basketball court at an approved location; and other recreational facilities which may be possible at approved locations; under terms and conditions acceptable to the selectmen and when determined by selectmen to be in the best interest of the town.

Selectmen voted unanimously at their regular meeting Monday to recommend the article pass.

Town Manager Jim Doar's original proposal would not have used money from the town's undesignated fund balance to lower the tax rate, as has been done in past years.

FIRE RAINBOW-Lynne Kulik of Bethel and her husband, Bud, were enjoying lunch recently on their sunporch when she looked up and saw colorful streaks in the sky. "I saw quite the phenomenon - a large splashy cloud filled with rainbow colors above the blossoming apple trees amid a bright blue Maine sky," she said. "It was a truly magnificent sight. I sent the photo to my Arizona family who enjoy seeing Mother Nature's treats and quickly received the following explanation from our grandson, Cameron: 'I dld some research online and it turns out they are extremely rare to come by. They are called Fire Rainbows and it happens only when the sun is just over 58 degrees above the horizon, which only happens around six weeks before or after the summer solstice." (Photo: L. Kulik)

THE PEOPLE HAVE SPOKEN

To the Editor:

1. The People Have Spoken. "Opinion Poll – 130 signatures opposed to a dog park being constructed on Townowned property and opposed to any town monies used to maintain the park ... submitted to the selectmen February 11, 2013.

2. The People Have Spoken. Petition signed by 172 taxpayers wishing for a basketball court to be built on Town Property ... Petition submitted to the Selectmen April 12, 2013.

3. Town of Bethel Has None. Bethel has to rely on its sister towns (Greenwood and Bryant Pond and a private ball field in Newry) to use their baseball fields and tennis courts.

4. Why doesn't Mahoosuc Land Trust step up and offer land that has been purchased by donated monies or donated land for the purpose of "conserving land for the benefit of the public; pedestrian friendly communities and outdoor recreation" as stated in their Mission Statement and Vision? Perfect for a dog park... This question has been asked several times at the many meetings concerning the dog park and never answered. Mahoosuc Land Trust has land on Sunset Avenue (Bethel), on a one way street, and less traveled by walkers which would be perfect for a Dog Park.

5. This is YOUR town. Please go to the town meeting June 12, and vote your opinion AGAIN (see 1 and 2 above). There will be three options – read them carefully, vote and stay to the end of the meeting to make sure the question does NOT come up again and is re-voted on.

DOG PARK CONCERNS

To the Editor:

I don't live in Bethel, but I used to, and have been watching the dog park controversy with interest. I now live in Portland, and am aware of at least five dog parks in the area. I would not take my dog to a dog park anywhere because after something happens, such as a fight, contracting a disease from another dog or one or more of the dogs getting loose, it's too late to wish you hadn't been there.

You probably won't know if all of the other dogs that utilize the park are up to date on their vaccinations, have some type of an airborne illness that hasn't been attended to, or if they have worms that can be transmitted between dogs.

Even the friendliest dog that you have ever met can have a total personality change in a pen with other dogs. If one or more dogs are aggressive and a fight starts, it's not a good idea to get between them, so there need to be plans for these issues. Dogs have pretty much lost the pack mentality through the years because their people have become their pack, so don't expect "Can't we all just get along?"

Sometimes a dog can escape depending on how long the doors are open for a very short time. At one of the parks in this area, a dog came out with no leash on and ran off. He attacked a young girl who was already afraid of dogs and he bit her. He went back to his owner and she drove off. The girl was with adults on a walking trail. At that time, nobody knew if the dog had been vaccinated for rabies, and if the owner hadn't finally come forward, the child would have had to go through the process of shots to protect her from rabies.

There are always going to be issues about the owners who "forget" to clean up after their dogs, people who want to drop their dogs off while they do errands so everyone else can watch them, and other issues that come up eventually, for sure.

It's important to take the tick population into consideration. Do the dogs that frequent the park have fleas and/or ticks? Is the physical area infested with ticks? Has anyone sprayed the area with something that could make the dogs sick?

There are a lot of questions and it is important to look at the positives and the negatives since your beloved family pet could be in jeopardy. All it takes is one situation and it becomes everyone's problem.

For what it's worth, in my opinion, the location is not the best one, and the standards don't seem to have been considered. If I wanted an enclosed area for my dog to run in, I would put up a fence and would not invite the neighborhood dogs for a play date. I would only have my dog to be responsible for. Dogs have become less pack animals through the years because they don't have to look for food, but their families and people they see frequently have become their packs.

I am just suggesting that there be more consideration concerning location, rules, who polices the area, cleans the area and makes sure that the fences and doors are secure. It may take dedicated volunteers or a paid employee.

PIPELINE COMMITTED TO SAFETY

To the Editor:

As local employers who help maintain the Portland Montreal Pipeline, we wanted to share our perspective with Bethel voters prior to next week's town meeting.

The Portland Pipeline Corporation pumps millions into Maine's economy annually, is responsible for more than half the tonnage moving through the Port of Portland, supports local jobs at companies like ours, and pays more than $23,000 annually to Bethel in property taxes.

Pipelines are five times safer than rail and 1,000 times safer than tanker trucks when it comes to transporting the petroleum products needed to fuel our economy and heat our homes. And, PPLC stands out as an industry leader, earning national recognition from industry groups and awards from the U.S. Coast Guard for its environmental stewardship and safety record.

The Maine Department of Environmental Protection proclaimed earlier this year that the company has an "impressive safety and environmental record," and is "an important partner," in spill prevention.

Global energy activists with an "off oil" agenda are trying to convince Mainers that oil sands-derived crude represents an unacceptable risk. But the findings of the Obama Administration, coming just weeks after a handful of Bethel voters passed an anti-oil sands resolution at a Special Town Meeting, prove their claims are not true.

The U.S. State Department's Draft Environmental Impact Statement on the Keystone XL Pipeline Project was released in March. The department reported that the characteristics of oil sands-derived crude are generally comparable to those of conventional crude oils and that pipeline incident rates involving Alberta pipelines that have been transporting oil sands crude for decades are similar to systems carrying conventional crude.

As local contractors, we have always known the Portland Pipe Line Corporation is committed to safety. Because of the Obama Administration report, we also now know that the claims of the activists about oil sands are simply not true.

RESCIND THE RESOLUTION

To the Editor:

The 400 members of the Maine Energy Marketers Association work every day to lower energy prices for their customers. I write to make it clear that Bethel voters have a chance next week to rescind a resolution that could limit our supply of petroleum products and lead to higher energy prices for Maine consumers.

The Alberta Oil Sands in Canada is the third largest reserve of crude in the world, has safely been a part of our fuel mix for decades, and is putting downward pressure on consumer prices. Earlier this year, a report in the Maine media put a barrel of oil from Alberta at about $60 a barrel compared to $118 a barrel for traditional foreign sources.

In January, the Portland City Council unanimously rejected a policy prohibiting the purchase of oil sands-derived products for Portland's fuel needs. The council concluded it would be impossible to source petroleum products in the market that could be certified to be free of oil sands-derived crude.

The Legislature's Environment and Natural Resources Committee reached a similar conclusion in May, unanimously agreeing to drop an oil sands moratorium from a bill after hearing from the Department of Environmental Protection that "refined oil may be comprised of oil from a variety of sources. The proposed moratorium could significantly reduce the availability of oil products in Maine and increase energy costs to Maine citizens and businesses."

Opponents of fossil fuels do not want voters to understand the true costs of eliminating oil sands crude from our fuel mix. Their proposal is unworkable and far too high a price to pay for those of us who rely on oil and gas to heat our homes and fuel our vehicles.

WEIGHT BLAME BY FUNDING FORMULA

To the Editor:

The letter from Dean Richmond about Telstar's "F" grade was nearly perfect. Dean is a citizen of Mason Township, an unorganized territory, and I'm a Newry citizen, a very organized territory, so we look at SAD 44 issues a little differently. Dean spread the blame for the failing grade to everyone. A very diplomatic thing to do. I think the blame (with tongue planted firmly in cheek) should be divided between the five towns of the district and weighted exactly like our district's SPECIAL state school funding formula based only on each town's valuation. The unorganized territories, like unorganized students, can't be blamed lest they feel inferior.

If we do this Newry is most to blame because it contributes more money to the district than any other town yet has the fewest students and we all know that money is the root of all evil. Because of a political deal done back in 2005 Newry (without a town vote or even a public discussion in Newry) became exempt from the normal school funding rules which are largely based on student enrollments.

Currently Newry contributes about $100,000 per student to the district while Mason Township contributes at the state average tuition rate of less than $10,000. See the following reference: State of Maine Department of Education 2012-13 public secondary tuition rates, Grades 9-12: 20-A MRSA $5805 (2): Tuition - Secondary School Students - Public Schools: The maximum allowable tuition charge by a public secondary school is the rate computed under subsection 1 or the state average per public secondary student cost as adjusted, whichever is lower. The school board of the sending unit may vote to pay a higher tuition rate. (The FY 2013 rate is $8,873.46.)

Say, hypothetically, Newry were to withdraw from the district, and take its money along with most of the blame for the failing score, wouldn't Telstar get a higher grade next year? It's a win-win! You may say that it wouldn't be fair for Newry to stop subsidizing the other towns and concentrate all that potential on its own kids. I thought so too until the "F" grade. Sometimes you don't get what you pay for.

MOLLYOCKETT ESSAYS SOUGHT

To the Editor:

Native people in Maine and beyond are watching our community with great interest. The national magazine, "Indian Country Today" wants to come to MollyOckett Day in July to cover this emerging story – how our community is becoming more informed, more respectful, and more inclusive of the aboriginal people of this state.

Since first contact in the late 1400s, our history with the original inhabitants of this land has been shameful. We can't change the past, but we can start learning the truth and acting with integrity now. We are keeping our traditional MollyOckett Days as the wonderful regional homecoming that it has been for 55 years, while expanding its reach in respect to the woman it honors and the name it carries.

The MollyOckett Essay Contest is part of this honoring. One male and one female high school student from our region (winning $350 each) will be honored for the essay they write about what life was like for the native people who lived during the time of MollyOckett's life (1740-1816). The former Chief of the Penobscot Nation, Barry Dana, will also personally congratulate the winners, having read their essays. Please encourage any young person you know to take advantage of this historic opportunity. The deadline for grades 9, 10 and 11 is June 12, for grade 12, the deadline is June 19. It is a 1000 word essay. Please contact arla@megaink.net for the guidelines and more details.

BETHEL TO BE TAGGED "DOG-FRIENDLY"

To the Editor:

Bethel is expected to be included in an upcoming book on dog-friendly places in North America. Kelly E. Carter is currently working on a book, "The Dog Lovers Guide to Travel," which will feature the best 75 places to vacation with a dog in the U.S. and Canada. It will be published in May of 2014, by National Geographic. For more information, go to http://thejetsetpets.com/.

In addition to inclusion in the book, having a Bethel dog park would also bring in more tourists, and surely attract dog lovers to settle in homes in Bethel. Our real estate economy could thrive again.

Please vote for the dog park.

resistance to the governor's plan in the Legislature, Doar recommended the town budget for receiving that revenue, but still provide a financial safety - net by not using undesig-, nated funds to lower the tax rate.

If the town did not receive the state funds, he said, it would have the same effect as using $170,000 of undesignated funds.

But the Budget Committee and selectmen decided instead to recommend taking $100,000 from undesig-· nated funds to reduce taxes. There was $1.1 million in the undesignated account at the end of FY'12, Doar said, and $258,000 was used in FY'13 to lower the tax rate.

The committee and selectmen also recommended flat-funding most requests from community organizations that seek money each year from the town, including one for MollyOckett Days that would have increased the contribution by threefold, to $3,000.

Voters will also decide whether to add $2,000 to the Local Contributions article for Independence Day fireworks. Doar said the town had anticipated the event would be privately funded this year, but those arrangements fell through.

The proposed budget also includes $25,000 to be set aside for future improvements to the Cole Block/ Odeon Hall, where the town office is located.

Park location will follow as Article 5, and the basketball court proposal for the Davis Park site, should the dog park be rejected, concludes the trio of articles as #6.

Selectmen voted unanimously to recommend against passage for Articles 5 and 6. Doar summarized the board's intent in its recommendations: "Let the committee do its work."

"Tar sands"

As a result of a citizen petition, a resolution approved at a special town meeting in January will be up for a revote.

The resolution opposes a potential reversal of the direction of oil flow through a Portland-Montreal Pipeline Co. pipeline that passes through Bethel as it carries crude oil to Montreal. Pipeline officials who attended the January meeting never got a chance to present their case before residents voted.

Resolution supporters worry PMPL might reverse the flow in order to carry diluted bitumen (dilbit for short, or "tar sands" as opponents call it) oil from Canada to Portland, and that the composition of that oil would increase the likelihood of a pipeline break or spill.

The resolution claims there are higher risks of oil spills from dilbit pipelines, and it expresses concern about local economic impacts should dilbit oil spill from a section of the PMPL pipeline that crosses the Androscoggin River. The document also asks for strict environmental impact reviews of pipelines proposed to carry dibit, and generally supported a shift toward cleaner fuels.

Pipeline officials say they currently do not have plans to reverse flow in the pipeline. But they have left open the possibility that might happen in the future and, citing a good safety record over the decades they have pumped traditional crude oil through the lines, say that if they do one day pump dilbit the risk of an accident will not increase.

The June 12 article asks if voters wish to rescind the resolution. Copies of the resolution will be available at the meeting.

Sign ordinance Residents will also vote on a proposed new ordinance section that would reform roadside directional signs in Bethel. The Committee Sign Ordinance Reform, with the help of a consultant, proposed new standards and a town logo. Under the plan three sign areas are defined: Highway Area, Village Area and Town Area. The plan proposes four complementary elements, which together with the logo are known as the "Bethel Sign and Information System,' The elements include: 1. Roadside directional signs that aid travelers in locating eligible business, nonprofit and governmental destinations and services; 2. Intra-community roadside directional signs that aid travelers in locating areas where groupings of eligible business, nonprofit and governmental services are clustered; 3, Public information kiosks that display town and regional information that highlights history, assets, a map, and listings of eligible destinations and services; 4. Gateway signs that welcome travelers to Bethel and provide information on seasonal events.

The committee recommends that the first two elements be given priority and be completed at the same time.

The town meeting begins t 7 p.m. at the Crescent Park Elementary School.

June 11 referendum The day before town meeting, residents will vote for town officials in a referendum at CPS.

The ballot for the municipal election will be: for selectman, Don Bennett and Stan Howe (vote for two); for assessor, Stan Howe and David Luxton (vote for two); for SAD 44 director, Elaine Cross and Carol Everett (vote for two).

Valedictorian Yutong Li and student speaker James Rambone will also address their classmates, teachers, and guests prior to the awarding of honors and diplomas.

A life-long commercial fisherman, Greenlaw received public attention when writer Sebastian Junger called her "one of the best captains...on the entire East Coast" in his hit book "The Perfect Storm." When approached by a publisher to tell her own story as a swordfish captain, Greenlaw wrote her first book, "The Hungry Ocean," in 1999. It became a New York Times bestseller.

Since then she has written eight other books, including two more New York Times bestsellers, and has appeared in three seasons of the Discovery Channel's "Swords: Life on the Line," a reality series chronicling New England swordfishing boats.

Greenlaw is the legal guardian of her "daughter" Sarai, a Gould alumna who graduated in 2010. Their relationship is the subject of the author's most recent book "Life Saving Lessons: Notes from an Accidental Mothers".

benefit AFSP."
With help from the Gould staff and others, her idea becomes a reality on June 16 with a 5/10-kilometer race entitled "Ryan's Trail Run: A Run for Life."

The course follows Gould's rugged, narrow mountain biking trails and a portion of the school's Nordic ski trails. As Kimball describes on the race website, "The terrain can be a bit tricky at times: tree roots, rocks, a couple of foot bridges – in our opinion, the perfect trail challenge!"

So far about 70 people are signed up, and registrations are still being accepted.

The fee is $30 and in addition, runners are asked to raise $100 through sponsorships. All of the sponsorship funds will go to the AFSP.

About Ryan

On the race website Kimball describes her brother as outgoing and likeable, with many friends. He was a musician and an outdoorsman – and a father.

"Despite being the goodnatured guy that drew people to him, Ryan struggled for many years with depression," Kimball wrote. "And in the last few months of his life, things just kept feeling more and more difficult. On April 9, 2008 he texted his friends and family writing that he loved us, and he took his own life,

"We can't change what happened that day. We can't help anyone heal any faster, or take their pain away. So, instead, we are doing what we can in hopes of preventing other families from having to experience the nightmare we lived through."

Kimball said last week, "The goal is simply to start a dialogue. The more awareness we can bring to how common mental health disabilities are, the more we can reduce the stigmas that are attached to them. People need to stop being so afraid of them, and start treating them like any other hereditary, biological, potentially terminal, but also very treatable diseases. People aren't ashamed to talk about cancer or MS or Parkinson's. These illnesses just happen. But so do emotional diseases. They just happen, too. But until people feel comfortable enough with this fact that they feel they can seek the help they need without being recognized as some sort of social outcast, then they will continue to withdraw, feel ashamed, and suicide rates will not decline. I don't think the focus needs to be so much on suicide as what LEADS to suicidal behavior. That is what needs the focus. That is what needs to change."

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

I have not traveled very much in the United States. In fact all of my excursions outside of Maine have kept me in New England. I have never traveled outside of the country even though I have had many pleasant daydreams about tropical paradises.

Because my travel has been somewhat limited I really don't know how people in other parts of the country or the world are, but I bet that most of us have one thing in common and that is that we are rarely satisfied with the weather.

People who have had to deal with devastating weather such as excessive rains causing floods, or complete lack of rain causing droughts, hurricanes or tornados have a right to be unhappy about the weather.

Those are not the circumstances I'm thinking about. I'm thinking about everyday normal seasonal weather.

Here in Maine the "What a beautiful day" days seem to be a bit scarce. I don't think I've ever heard anyone say "What a beautiful day" during the winter. Winter is always too cold and if you're not into winter sports there is way too much snow. If you're an outdoor person then there's never enough snow.

In the summer it's always too hot and either too much rain or not enough, especially if you have a garden and have to stand for hours in the hot sun watering it. Spring comes too late and fall way too early.

This year it has been a little different. Winter was relatively mild with average snowfall and only a few below-zero days. I still complained about the conditions anyway. A dusting of snow was too much in my opinion and every time the furnace kicked on it was much too cold.

We are rarely satisfied with the weather

My son complained that there was not enough snow for good snowmobiling and not enough cold for good ice fishing. My grand-children complained that there were not enough "snow day" off from school.

Soon after the start of the new year I began with my "I can't wait for spring" mantra. This usually goes on until mid-May, but spring came early this year. And still I complained. It was too wet, too windy, too hot, and the bugs came out much too early.

Now I'm hoping for a mild summer and it's getting hard to tell what it's going to be. I love summer except it gets too hot or it could be too cold. I hope we don't get too much rain. I hope we have enough.

I have become such a weather whiner, but I'm not alone. The other day when we actually had one of those rare "beautiful days" and I was satisfied with the weather I said to the person standing in front of me at the post office, "Isn't this a lovely day?" "Enjoy it while you can," my line mate responded. "It's supposed to rain for rest of the week!"

On the same day I mentioned to another person that it was such a beautiful day and I was really enjoying it. This person's response was, "I bet there will be a killing frost before the week is out. We can't be this lucky!"

By the time my "beautiful" happy day was over I was bummed out about the potential for rain and killing frost. I try to console myself by thinking about how bad it has been in other parts of the country compared to here in Maine. I really need to become more positive about something I have no control over.

So, the way I see it the best thing I can do is plan on a beautiful day tomorrow no matter what or as long as it doesn't rain...or snow...or be too hot.... or get too cold...or be too windy.

We lost our power at 4:34 p.m., Sunday, as the thunderstorm's front swept into

Mayville. A CMP crew from Portland arrived about 10:15 a.m., Monday, and had us lighted up again by 10:30. One result of our blackout - we used our outdoor solar lights, held up in old milk bottles, to give us light until bedtime. They are out recharging in the sun today (Monday).

International geologist group visits Bethel

Friday morning, onehundred international leaders in geology and advanced geology students gathered at the Maine Mineral and Gem Museum. The visitors were recent participants in the 6th International Symposium on Granite Pegmatites. It was the first time such a meeting had been held in the United States. Their program consisted of two parts: a symposium held at the Attitash Grand Summit Hotel in Bartlett, N.H., and a field trip to five Oxford County sites, the new museum and four mines - Mount

Mica in Paris, Havey in Poland, Bennett and Orchard mines in Buckfield, and the Emmons mine in Greenwood.

Museum Director Barbra Barrett and MMGM Trustee Stephen Seames had been with the group all week. The symposium covered lectures, workshops, presentation of scholarly papers on chemicals present in pegmatites and new research. One topic, for example, covered the issue of how does pegmatology interface with the mineral industry, society and market forces?

Director Barrett briefed the group on museum progress and near term goals. Then she led them on a partial tour of the museum's layout and collection exhibits. Museum founders. Dr. Lawrence Stifler and Mary McFadden, were also on hand to give the delegates an overview of plans for the museum's role in the broader realm of worldwide mineral and gem interests.

I had a chance to talk briefly with people from Brazil, Canada, the Czech Republic, and South Africa. A woman from South Africa was carrying a red "tourist" bag with "Istanbul" printed all over it. So I asked her if she was from Istanbul. She laughed and said "No, I'm from South Africa, but my husband is an aeronautical engineer who travels a lot and, knowing I like these bags, always brings one home from places he visits. She asked, "Does Bethel have a bag like this? "-Not that I know of.

Two delegates from Montreal were interested in the Civil War soldier monument and their question was, "Who were the Loyal Sons?" So we talked about the "Loyalists" versus the Unionists and the Confederates. They knew that some Loyalists had fled the U.S. to Canada.

Jan Filip, who was from the Faculty of Science at Palacky University at Olomouc, Czech Republic, is a researcher in water treatment technologies. So we talked very briefly about Bethel's water treatment system. I had started by telling him that for two years I had been a border patrol officer along the German-Czech border in the 1950s. He was familiar with the main legal crossing points in my area.

At the SAD 44 meeting The relatively few voters who attended the May 28 SAD 44 budget meeting approved all articles by a vote of 49 to 7. Many of the questions which were asked had been answered in the school district's report titled "MSAD #44 Annual Reports 2011-2012." These are some examples from the report: Pages 2 and 3 report the district-wide staff and a breakdown of staff per school, student numbers that year, and principals; page 5 reports the academic grade distribution by school grade for that year; page 6 reports the number of students meeting growth targets; beginning on page 17, a series of charts plot grades by school (CPS, Woodstock, etc.) compared to each other and compared to all Maine student numbers: back to page 3 for a table of personnel assigned to central office, bus garage, special education and food service.

This report is part of the SAD 44 webpage assembly of reports and school information similar to town reports; it is listed under General Information in the main menu.

Polly Davis retires from Citizen

The Citizen held a hailand-farewell on Friday morning at the Citizen office for Polly Davis. She retired at the end of May. Contributors to the weekly paper were invited to attend for coffee and refreshments to Polly's farewell party. Those attending included Rocky Graham, Nancy Wight, Danna Nickerson, Betsey Foster, Becky Kendall, Rosabelle Tifft, plus the Citizen staff, who hosted the event. Even the Citizen's publisher, Edward Snook, was there; first time probably many of us had ever seen him.

Tatum Brown is taking over Polly's job as a Production Assistant. She will work from home as the online age has eliminated another desk in the office. She has certifiable Bethel roots as a granddaughter of Donald and Eleanor Brooks.

"Despite being the goodnatured guy that drew people to him, Ryan struggled for many years with depression," Kimball wrote, "And in the last few months of his life, things just kept feeling more and more difficult. On April 9, 2008 he texted his friends and family writing that he loved us, and he took his own life.

"We can't change what happened that day. We can't help anyone heal any faster, or take their pain away. So, instead, we are doing what we can in hopes of preventing other families from having to experience the nightmare we lived through." Kimball said last week,

"The goal is simply to start a dialogue. The more awareness we can bring to how common mental health disabilities are, the more we can reduce the stigmas that are attached to them. People need to stop being so afraid of them, and start treating them like any other hereditary, biological, potentially terminal, but also very treatable diseases. People aren't ashamed to talk about cancer or MS or Parkinson's. These illnesses just happen. But so do emotional diseases. They just happen, too. But until people feel comfortable enough with this fact that they feel they can seek the help they need without being recognized as some sort of social outcast, then they will continue to withdraw, feel ashamed, and suicide rates will not decline. I don't think the focus needs to be so much on suicide as what LEADS to suicidal behavior. That is what needs the focus. That is what needs to change."

I have not traveled very much in the United States. In fact all of my excursions outside of Maine have kept me in New England. I have never traveled outside of the country even though I have had many pleasant daydreams about tropical paradises.

Because my travel has been somewhat limited I really don't know how people in other parts of the country or the world are, but I bet that most of us have one thing in common and that is that we are rarely satisfied with the weather.

People who have had to deal with devastating weather such as excessive rains causing floods, or complete lack of rain causing droughts, hurricanes or tornados have a right to be unhappy about the weather.

Those are not the circumstances I'm thinking about. I'm thinking about everyday normal seasonal weather.

Here in Maine the "What a beautiful day" days seem to be a bit scarce. I don't think I've ever heard anyone say "What a beautiful day" during the winter. Winter is always too cold and if you're not into winter sports there is way too much snow. If you're an outdoor person then there's never enough snow.

In the summer it's always too hot and either too much rain or not enough, especially if you have a garden and have to stand for hours in the hot sun watering it. Spring comes too late and fall way too early.

This year it has been a little different. Winter was relatively mild with average snowfall and only a few below-zero days. I still complained about the conditions anyway. A dusting of snow was too much in my opinion and every time the furnace kicked on it was much too cold.

We are rarely satisfied with the weather

My son complained that there was not enough snow for good snowmobiling and not enough cold for good ice fishing. My grandchildren complained that there were not enough "snow day" off from school.

Soon after the start of the new year I began with my "I can't wait for spring" mantra. This usually goes on until mid-May, but spring came early this year. And still I complained. It was too wet, too windy, too hot, and the bugs came out much too early.

Now I'm hoping for a mild summer and it's getting hard to tell what it's going to be. I love summer except it gets too hot or it could be too cold. I hope we don't get too much rain. I hope we have enough.

I have become such a weather whiner, but I'm not alone. The other day when we actually had one of those rare "beautiful days" and I was satisfied with the weather I said to the person standing in front of me at the post office, "Isn't this a lovely day?' "Enjoy it while you can," my line mate responded. "It's supposed to rain for rest of the week!"

On the same day I mentioned to another person that it was such a beautiful day and I was really enjoying it. This person's response was, "I bet there will be a killing frost before the week is out. We can't be this lucky!"

By the time my "beautiful" happy day was over I was bummed out about the potential for rain and killing frost. I try to console myself by thinking about how bad it has been in other parts of the country compared to here in Maine. I really need to become more positive about something I have no control over.

So, the way I see it the best thing I can do is plan on a beautiful day tomorrow no matter what or as long as it doesn't rain...or snow...or be too hot.... or get too cold...or be too windy.

Bethet

We lost our power at 4:34 p.m., Sunday, as the thunderstorm's front swept into

Mayville. A CMP crew from Portland arrived about 10:15 a.m., Monday, and had us lighted up again by 10:30. One result of our blackout - we used our outdoor solar lights, held up in old milk bottles, to give us light until bedtime. They are out recharging in the sun today (Monday).

International geologist group visits Bethel

Friday morning, onehundred international leaders in geology and advanced geology students gathered at the Maine Mineral and Gem Museum. The visitors were recent participants in the 6th International Symposium on Granite Pegmatites. It was the first time such a meeting had been held in the United States. Their program consisted of two parts: a symposium held at the Attitash Grand Summit Hotel in Bartlett, N.H., and a field trip to five Oxford County sites, the new museum and four mines - Mount

Mica in Paris, Havey in Poland, Bennett and Orchard mines in Buckfield, and the Emmons mine in Greenwood.

Museum Director Barbra Barrett and MMGM Trustee Stephen Seames had been with the group all week. The symposium covered lectures, workshops, presentation of scholarly papers on chemicals present in pegmatites and new research. One topic, for example, covered the issue of how does pegmatology interface with the mineral industry, society and market forces?

Director Barrett briefed the group on museum progress and near term goals. Then she led them on a partial tour of the museum's layout and collection exhibits. Museum founders, Dr. Lawrence Stifler and Mary McFadden, were also on hand to give the delegates an overview of plans for the museum's role in the broader realm of worldwide mineral and gem interests.

I had a chance to talk briefly with people from Brazil, Canada, the Czech Republic, and South Africa. A woman from South Africa was carrying a red "tourist" bag with "Istanbul" printed all over it. So I asked her if she was from Istanbul. She laughed and said "No. I'm from South Africa, but my husband is an aeronautical engineer who travels a lot and, knowing I like these bags, always brings one home from places he visits. She asked, "Does Bethel have a bag like this? "-Not that I know of.

Two delegates from Montreal were interested in the Civil War soldier monument and their question was, "Who were the Loyal Sons?" So we talked about the "Loyalists" versus the Unionists and the Confederates. They knew that some Loyalists had fled the U.S. to Canada.

Jan Filip, who was from the Faculty of Science at Palacky University at Olomouc, Czech Republic, is a researcher in water treatment technologies. So we talked very briefly about Bethel's water treatment system. I had started by telling him that for two years I had been a border patrol officer along the German-Czech border in the 1950s. He was familiar with the main legal crossing points in my area.

At the SAD 44 meeting The relatively few voters who attended the May 28 SAD 44 budget meeting approved all articles by a vote of 49 to 7. Many of the questions which were asked had been answered in the school district's report titled "MSAD #44 Annual Reports 2011-2012." These are some examples from the report: Pages 2 and 3 report the district-wide staff and a breakdown of staff per school, student numbers that year, and principals; page 5 reports the academic grade distribution by school grade for that year; page 6 reports the number of students meeting growth targets; beginning on page 17, a series of charts plot grades by school (CPS, Woodstock, etc.) compared to each other and compared to all Maine student numbers; back to page 3 for a table of personnel assigned to central office, bus garage, special education and food service.

The Citizen held a hailand-farewell on Friday morning at the Citizen office for Polly Davis. She retired at the end of May. Contributors to the weekly paper were invited to attend for coffee and refreshments to Polly's farewell party. Those attending included Rocky Graham, Nancy Wight, Danna Nickerson, Betsey Foster, Becky Kendall, Rosabelle Tifft, plus the Citizen staff, who hosted the event. Even the Citizen's publisher, Edward Snook, was there; first time probably many of us had ever seen him.

Tatum Brown is taking over Polly's job as a Production Assistant. She will work from home as the online age has eliminated another desk in the office. She has certifiable Bethel roots as a granddaughter of Donald and Eleanor Brooks.

The History Club Is There a Recycled Schoolhouse on the Bull Branch Road?

Loretta Powers passed on a question she had received to wit: was one of the buildings in the Maine State Reserve area along Bull Branch Road possibly at one time a school house?

In the late 1800s, Riley voters had contributed to building a school house and one was put up on Stillman Littlehale's farm. Later, it was turned into a blacksmith shop.

Littlehales

moved to Bethel, the farm and homestead buildings were transferred to the Brown Company; they later burned down, It's possible that the blacksmith shop did not burn and was later moved. I photographed the buildings standing near the Twin Bridges last Saturday - none seem to stand out as old school houses. Does anyone know more about the background of these buildings or of an old school house tucked away in the woods along the road?

In 1893, Ernest Perkins wrote about the Mason Street houses for the Bethel Historical Society. He identified the house on Mason Street near Sanding Brook on the south side of Mason Street to be the one built by Stillman Littlehale after 1900 but who sold it 1911. The Donahues lived there in the late 1940s - early 1950s, I believe. Stillman Littlehale had been town clerk of Riley Plantation from 1868 until his death in 1916.

MUSEUM TOUR- Dozens of geologists, mineralogists, petrologists and others interested in mineralogy toured the under-construction Maine Mineral and Gem Museum in Bethel on Friday. They had been attending "Peg 2013," an international symposium on granitic pegmatites, in Bartlett, N.H. Here, MMGM Executive Director Barbra Barrett describes the plans for the museum to the group. The Maine Writers & Publishers Alliance announced the winners of their 2013 Maine Literary Awards on Thursday, May 30. Bethel resident Richard Blanco won the Book Award for Poetry with "Looking for the Gulf Motel." Monica Wood, a Mexico native, won the Book Award for Memoir for "When We Were the Kennedys." Wood's book will resonate with many of us who live in this area. It tells the story of how her family coped with the death of her father, a worker at the Rumford paper mill, in 1963, the same year that President John Kennedy was killed. This year, 110 books were considered for the Maine Literary Awards in eleven categories, including poetry, fiction, crime fiction, and memoir. Sixty manuscripts were submitted into the award's Short Works Competition in the categories of fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and drama. More than 50 Maine students submitted work to the winds that accompanied them left trees down and power out in some places. In Greenwood, several trees were downed near the town beach and on the first sharp corner of the Greenwood Road, according to Town Manager Kim Sparks. The fireflies are out.

These delightful little beetles literally light up our lives. On a lesser note, the deer flies are out and join the other assorted biting bugs that are feasting on our blood. Whoever said that humans are at the top of the food chain never lived in western Maine during bug season.

Last week's heat wave ended with very strong winds (upwards of 40 miles per hour for a brief time) and rain Sunday evening. The winds took down trees and branches and knocked out power for several hours.

With the power out, that brought an end to most of our activities. Decades ago, in my childhood, the loss of power was a time of excitement. My grandmother would shut all the windows at the farm and then announce that it was time "to sit on the porch and watch the storm." There wasn't much else to do then, and there still isn't now when we lose electricity. It is a time to chill out, enjoy nature's show, and count the seconds between lightning and thunder. One-onethousand, two-one-thousand. I grew up thinking the number of seconds equated to the number of miles away the storm was. National Weather Service says it is every five seconds that equals a mile. Whatever the correct relationship, I hope people still take the time to sit down and enjoy our summer thunderstorms. To the Broughs - thank you. It was appreciated. You can send news to Town meeting is scheduled for Thursday, June 27, 7 p.m., at the school.

Terry and Matt, guests of the Upton House this past weekend, caught lovely rainbow some trout. They shared the trout and some recipes with Charlotte and Bob. They did not share the location of their fishing spot.

The severe thunderstorms last Sunday blew down 12 large trees on Ellie LeComte's property. She was a little nervous during the storms. Congratulations

The Letter B Notch Riders will meet Sunday, June 9, 9 a.m., at the Route 26 end of North Road in Grafton. After the meeting, the members will disperse to clean up trash and debris along the trails and roads of their trail system. Please join us in our effort to keep the trails clean and maintain a good relationship with the landowners. Bring lots of bug repellant and remember that you will have trash bags on your machine and you will need a way to keep the bags on your racks. Upton town roads are permitted access routes and they will need roadside cleanup, graduation of granddaughter Jessica. Jess did very well and earned an "academic letter" from Mahomet/Seymour HS. It was a good visit, as we had quite a bit of quality time with the three teens: Jacob, a college junior (in the fall); Jessica, and 14 year old Jana. Of course, we also enjoyed parents, Cheryl and Mark, who had Memorial Day off from work.

Our return trip on Tuesday was uneventful, except for one minor glitch. We flew from Chicago O'Hare to Boston's Logan airport, where we changed to a commuter bus to Portsmouth, where we had left our car. We made it safely home from Portsmouth, only to discover I had mistakenly picked up the wrong bag from the bus terminal. Another lady apparently had a red carry-on bag that looked exactly like the one that Mona carried, except for one minor green tag. After phoning the C & J Bus terminal, Mona arranged to return the wrong bag the next morning after her weight

Now is the time to start thinking of protecting your pet from LYME DISEASE

The best protection against lyme disease is prevention. Give your pet a flea and tick preventative, which can help ensure that an infected tick that attaches itself, dies before transmitting the disease to your pet. The CDC is Indicating that we can expect an increase in lyme disease this year.

watchers meeting, because we were both too tired to drive three hours back to Portsmouth Tuesday afternoon after traveling all day since about 1 a.m.

Shiloh was really happy to see us when we picked him up at Katrina's Tuesday afternoon. He stayed glued to my heels for two days, except for when he laid down with his eyes following either Mona or me. I missed Shiloh's favorite toy, a red rubber "Kong," which he loves to chase if you will throw it for him. I didn't see the Kong for 3 or 4 days, not too unusual because Shiloh has a habit of carrying it around with him when we go walking and haphazardly dropping it when we're not looking. In those cases, I have to remember the last time I saw Shiloh with Kong; then we retrace our walk where he usually spies and picks Kong up again. About Saturday afternoon, I just happened to see Kong in about 4 feet of water in our frog pond, when I was watching frogs and tadpoles.

I put on my Muck boots and got a garden rake and went to the pond to see if I could retrieve Kong without getting wet. When I got to the water's edge, Shiloh went swimming and muddied the water so that I couldn't see Kong! Next morning, I shut Shiloh in the house while I went to the pond alone. Standing in the water to the top of my boots, I was just able to reach Kong with the far end of the rake. A few futile retrievals later, I finally snagged it. Shiloh was really pleased when I gave it to him!

Albany By CATHY BENNETT

Hello from good old Albany. We are right in the middle of a few thundershowers.

Need to get the news done in case the power goes

It has been a quiet week. Thank goodness, as I was able to get a lot of things done until the heat and humidity hit, then I was all done. Time for quiet, inside activities for this old lady. Hope it cools off and stops raining so I can get my lawns mowed.

Dolly Barton is back home after her trip to Missouri.

Franklin Barton and Brian Toothaker, Jr. went fishing up to South Arm on Saturday.

Candy Howard is now in Market Square Nursing Home and would love to have cards and notes from her friends. Visitors are also welcome.

The storms are getting nearer so will say goodbye for this week.

ART FOR THE POET-A book project entitled "Poetic Printmaking" was created this spring by eighth grade General Art class students at Telstar Middle School under TMS Visual Art teacher Melissa Prescott. The book was displayed at the 2013 Telstar Art Exhibition, and it will be given as a gift to poet Richard Blanco in appreciation of his poem, "One Today," which he wrote and read at the 2013 presidential inauguration. The book includes 36 original prints, as well as the text of the poem and a list of the names of the student artists who created it. Students began the project by watching and listening to the poem while brainstorming visual images that the poem created in their mind. Ultimately, each student chose one black and white image to use as their printmaking design. After viewing several examples of block print artwork, and learning some techniques for creating an effective linoleum print design, students completed rough drafts of their print design. Students then revised their designs, transferred them to small linoleum blocks, and carved away the negative space from their designs. Once the carving was complete, students created a series of prints, and then selected their best print to be included in this handmade book. Prescott completed the project by binding the prints together into the accordion-style book.

Philanthropy camp offered at Gould

Leadership, ethics and philanthropy studies will mix at Gould Academy in July when Grab The Torch opens a six-day overnight experience for teenagers at their traveling Summer Institute. Grab The Torch is a non-profit that has programs in Colorado, Connecticut and their inaugural in Bethel.

Grab the Torch founder Dave Aldrich said he decided to bring the program to Bethel at the suggestion of Carly Giddings (GTT '11, '12) a new resident of Bethel and Gould student along with Larry Stifler and Mary McFadden, who have an unwavering commit to philanthropy in this region for over 30 years. Their recent and most visible project, the Maine Mineral and Gem Museum is a model of how community involvement and non-profit collaboration can have an amazing impact highlighting the natural resources of Maine while supporting economic development in the region. Their daughter Molly attended GTT's inaugural program in 2009. One of his goals is to highlight the amazing level of cooperation that the Maine community displays in "walking the walk for the greater good in Main.e'

Aldrich said last week the institute would like to include several local youths in addition to Gould students who will participate. Grab The Torch has reserved 10 full scholarships for Maine students. "We'll make every possible accommodation for deserving and enthusiastic students," he said. "We'll have students coming from Minnesota, Connecticut and New York City."

The camp will build skills in the areas from which the institute takes its name. Aldrich founded his nonprofit in 2008 after having the idea to combine summer camp with a curriculum featuring those skills. He said society encourages youth to lead in change and community engagement, but often does not necessarily provide a clear strategy for execution. His approach is basic "each student holds a piece of the greater good puzzle, different sizes, shapes and colors. Each student must find their piece, take action and put their piece in place or the puzzle will never be complete."

The program at Gould will include two dozen speakers from a variety of nonprofit organizations, among them the Maine Community Foundation, Burton Snowboards/Chill Foundation, Bethel Non-Profit Collaborative, Conscious Capitalism and Envoys Global Education.

"There will be kids from every demographic," said Aldrich. "They will have access to the top people in the non-profit sector, including acclaimed speaker, Paul Schervish of Boston College

He said activities will range from panel discussions to walks on the Stifler properties, leadership adventure programs at Bryant Pond to workshops on the lawn at Gould. Raj Sisodia, Co-Founder (along with John Makay of Whole Foods) of Conscious Capitalism will deliver a presentation that will be open to the Bethel community during their stay. GTT has been featured on public radio in Massachusetts, Colorado and Vermont.

The event will take place from July 14 to 19. For more information on the program, registration and applying for a scholarships, visit www.grabthetorch.org.

for me, but it was much better than this weekend. My car's air conditioner is broken and that makes it hot when it is 90 degrees out. Never thought I'd use an air conditioner, but what did I know. When it gets that hot that quickly, it is hard to take. One day it is 40 and there is frost, and almost overnight it is 90. Too hard on the body.

Last Friday, May 31, there was a farewell party or should I say Retirement Party for Polly Davis. At 85, Polly is leaving the Citizen for a life of leisure. All of the columnists that could attended. It was fun. Most of us never get to see each other. Polly has been our only connection. I know she will be back and editing our work. Good luck to you, Polly.

That is all for this week. Students will be out soon, so be careful for bike riders, etc. If anyone has anything they would like to see in this column, please contact me at 739-9115.

Andover

By JANE RICH

Congratulations to Michael Cintron who was selected to represent Telstar High School at the Maine Youth Leadership Seminar, which was held from May 30 to June 2 at the USM Gorham Campus. One-hundred-thirty students from high schools around the state participated in the four day event, which is designed to help them hone their leadership skills.

The Andover Olde Home Day Committee met on Monday evening to discuss activities planned for the August 2, 3 and 4 event, which is celebrating its 33rd year. Some of the events include the skillet throwing contest, photography competition, and children's games. The popular lawn tractor contests include a race and tractor pull. There will be a tractor pull for children age 8 and up. The Garden contest this year will include a category for children. Members of the committee split up the contact list for button prizes, which will be solicited from local businesses and individu-

The theme is Barns and Agriculture and three local barns will be featured on the buttons and T-shirts. The barns of Bill Swan and the Phister-Fox house at the corner of Route 120 and the East Andover Road will be on two different buttons, while the T-shirts will feature the barn at Brian Myers home, which was previously owned by the Greenlows and before that the Abbotts.

Dave Belanger reported that the Porta-Potty problem has been solved and we will be able to have a school bus to transport people from the Grimaldi Field parking area to locations around town.

Final plans will be made at the next meeting on July 15.

Most of you are aware that I lead worship on Sunday evening at the Upton Union Church at 5 p.m. Now going to Upton is often an adventure. Sometimes I see wildlife. Sometimes the view is quite beautiful looking over the lake from East B Hill, but this past Sunday I was coming from Gorham to Andover, which necessitated driving up Route 26, through Bethel and Grafton Notch. As it turned out at the height of the storm with assorted downed brush and trees along the way and lighting strikes on the mountain tops. Returning to Andover was no picnic either and there were three trees down on East B, but fortunately none blocked the entire road. Ah, the life of a circuit riding preacher!

FAMILY FISHING-About 75 youngsters and their families turned out for the annual Family Fishing Day at Angevine Park in Bethel. The humans and the brook trout (stocked for the event) endured unusually warm 90-degree temperatures. Here, Chris Robinson and Erik Bishop of Albany measure a fish and Erik's brother Damian holds one. The Upper Andro Anglers Alliance, in cooperation with Trout Unlimited, hosted the festival, and local Maine Guides and TU members taught free casting workshops and fly-tying.

High School Girls' Varsity Softball

Monmouth 2, Telstar 1; May 28 – Telstar softball dropped a tough game to Monmouth on Tuesday, losing in nine innings. The Rebel offense had only four hits, and stranded nine base runners during the game. Jessie Dirago struck out 15 Monmouth batters, and only allowed five hits for the game. Monmouth scratched out a run in the bottom of the seventh to send the game into extra innings, and won it in the bottom of the ninth. The Rebels finished the regular season with a 9-5 record. – Coach Jim Lunney. (The third-ranked Rebels were scheduled to host #6 Monmouth in a playoff game June 5.)

TMS Girls' Varsity Softball

Telstar 12, Dirigo 12; May 20 – The Telstar Middle School girls' softball team came back from a 10 to 3 deficit to tie Dirigo Middle School. The girls' will to fight and their comeback were sparked with hits from Shelby Cowin, Kim Drew, Annika Mitchell, and Peyton Abbott. Tehya Johnson was the big contributor, hitting two home runs. Tehya also recorded 12 strikeouts while pitching the complete game. Taylor Merrill had a great catch in right field to stop multiple runs from scoring. Way to fight back, ladies! A very important lesson was learned that night, which was to fight until the last out is made, and never give up. – Coach Jim Merrill.

Telstar 12, Carrabec 2; May 28 – The Telstar Middle School girls' softball team won against Carrabec. Leading the lady Rebels on offense were Tehya Johnson, with a homerun and a triple; Wynter Morin, with two singles; and Taylor Merrill with one hit. Shelby Cowin scored twice with three walks. Teyha and Wynter also scored three times for the Rebels. Johnson was also the winning pitcher, recording 16 strikeouts. Kylee Martin and Josie Forbes each recorded multiple putouts at second base. Great job, Rebels! – Coach Jim Merrill.

Telstar 8, Mt. Valley 7; May 30 - The Telstar Middle School girls' softball team ended their 2013 season with a big win over rival Mt. Valley. Telstar's record this season ended with six wins, one loss, and one tie. It was an outstanding year for the players, parents, and coaching staff. I want to thank the players for working hard on their schoolwork and on the field - both signs of true athletes. Now, for the game. Girls with hits were Shelby Cowin, two hits; and Teyha Johnson, Kim Drew, Erin Childs, Taylor Merrill, and Josie Forbes, all with one hit each. The big hits in this game came from Wynter Morin's bat. She had a triple and a base hit. The entire team played their best defensive game of the year. Teyha pitched 10 strikeouts and Mt. Valley Grounded out 11 times to Telstar's infielders. It was great to see our defense come together and make the plays. This gives the pitcher confidence in the team behind her. This was an awesome season and I am proud of each one of the girls. - Coach Jim Merrill.

TMS Boys' Varsity Varsity Baseball

Telstar 22, Carrabec 12; May 28 – The Telstar MS Varsity baseball team defeated Carrabec. Josh Eliot led the team hitting, and went four for four with seven RBIs. Duncan Forbes and Tanner Wheeler added two hits each while Russell Cushman, Marcus Wentworth, and Schuyler Leff each had a hit. The team is now 4-2 for the season. – Coach Tim O'Connor.

Middle School Girls' Track

Meet at Telstar, May 29 – Mt. Valley 94, Telstar 79. The Telstar Middle School girls' track team had a spectacular end to their season. Despite the heat, Nicole Tribble Pelotte managed to crush the school's record in Javelin. The girls came in second behind Mt. Valley. Katie Turnick came in second in both the 55m hurdles and the 200m dash. Caitlin Haines came in first in the 100m dash and shot put. Marta Opie took third in the 800m. India Orino took third in the 200m dash and first in discus. Nicole Tribble Pelotte took third in javelin; Natasha Hart, second in long jump; and Alice Pelletier, third in 400m. The 4x200 relay team came in first. Congratulations to Caitlin Haines, India Orino, Natasha Hart, and Alice Pelletier.

Middle School Boys' Track

Meet at Telstar, May 29 – Mt. Valley 108, Telstar 104, The Telstar Middle School boys' track team had a spectacular end to their season. Despite the heat, the team managed to crush five school records – Avry Griffin, 55m hurdle and triple jump; Elijah Mason, javelin; Matthew Bennett, 800m; and Gunner Fournier, Kellen True, Avry Griffin, and Matthew Bennet, 4x200 relay. Overall, the boys came in second, just behind Mt. Valley.

Summer swim programs

This summer's swim programs to be held by the Town of Bethel, the Town of West Paris, and the Town of Woodstock, will once again feature the Red Cross Instructor, Ellie Kingsbury. Information for the programs is now at the local town offices. Please stop by and sign your child up for an exciting, fun swim program. The cost of the program is $10 per child for town residents and $15 per child for non-residents. The dates of the programs are as follows:

Town of Bethel Swim Program: Tuesday, June 25 through Thursday, July 11.

Town of West Paris Swim Program: Monday, July 15

through Friday, July 26.
Town of Woodstock Swim Program: Tuesday, July 30 through Monday, August 12.

There are no classes on weekends.

Bethel Historical Society

In order to provide exhibits, programs, events, and publications that make the region's history meaningful, accessible, and enjoyable, the Bethel Historical Society actively seeks grants and foundation support on a regular basis. Recently, a $500 grant was received from Franklin County Savings Bank for the installation of additional interior storm windows at the Society's Robinson House. In addition, a $1,500 grant from the Sunday River Charitable Fund of the Maine Community Foundation in support of the Society's general operations. As one of the largest non-profit organizations in western Maine, the Society depends on annual contributions such as these to continue its work, which benefits members, local residents, visitors, students, and scholars.

The months of June and July will be a busy time at the Society's Museum of Regional History on Broad Street. On June 20, the annual Hall Memorial Lecture will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the exhibit hall of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Eben Miller, History/Honors Program Coordinator at Southern Maine Community College, will present "Nelson Dingley, Jr.'s Daily Evening Journal: A View of the Northern Civil War Home Front, 1861-1863." Launched during the outbreak of the Civil War in April, 1861, the "Lewiston Daily Evening Journal" offers a unique view of the Northern home front. Published by a young Republican (future Maine governor Nelson Dingley, Jr.) the Journal demonstrates how Mainers responded to the crisis, from the swift mobilization of regimental units to widespread displays of patriotism. This lecture will draw from the Journal to explore the extent to which the experiences in Lewiston, and in Maine more generally, were emblematic of the Northern home front during the first years of the Civil War, paying special attention to soldiers' news from the war front, expressions of Unionism, economic and cultural developments, and the evolution of emancipation as a wartime policy. This program is part of the Bethel Historical Society's 2013 Lecture Series, "Trails, Trials and Tourism: Capturing the Maine Experience," which is supported, in part, by a grant from the Maine Humanities Council. The subject of this year's Lecture has also been selected to coincide with the Society's participation in the Maine Civil War Trail (visit http://mainecivilwartrail.org/ home/ for more information).

Regular summer season guided tours of the Dr. Moses Mason House will begin on July 2 and continue through August 31. During this time, the Mason House will be open from 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. A small fee is charged for the tour, which includes nine period rooms and usually lasts about 30 minutes. Special family rates are available and children under 6 tour free!

On Tuesday, July 2, the Society will commemorate the 200th birthday of the Mason House with a short program entitled "200 Years a Landmark: Celebrating the Dr. Moses Mason House." Begun in 1813, and renovated and restored by the William Bingham II Trust for Charity.

In 1972 and 73, the Federal style house is the oldest residence at Bethel Hill. A highlight of the event will be the unveiling of a professionally designed scale model of the Dr. Moses Mason House created by BHS member James Auman of Warren, N.J., and Norway. The program will take place at 1:30 p.m. in the Mason House exhibit hall, and is free and open to the public.

The annual Fourth of July Community Picnic & Concert will begin at 11:30 a.m. on the side lawn of the Dr. Moses Mason House (14 Broad Street). Following the presentation of colors and the National Anthem, Matt Ruby, Head of School at Gould Academy, will speak briefly about this special day in American history. The event will continue with a free two-hour concert by the Portland Brass Quintet. Dr. Mason began this Fourth of July tradition in the 1850s and the Bethel Historical Society proudly carries it on today. In case of rain, the picnic and concert will be held in the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse (1816) on Intervale Road, approximately four miles downriver from Bethel Hill village.

Canoe and kayak race

Bethel is about to host the 17th Annual Androscoggin Canoe and Kayak Race. Sunday, June 9, will see a gathering from far and wide at the campground location of Bethel Outdoor Adventures, with a kickoff briefing at 10:30 a.m. The Maine Canoe and Kayak Racing Organization are primary sponsors.

There will be some racers with their fancy, lighter-than-a-feather, sleek boats, built in drink dispensers, bent paddles – and there will be an equal number of those of us who call ourselves the "Recreational Class," paddling the old boat that has spent the winter outside with paddles that deserve a coat of varnish. But, all are welcome, and all are treated equally!

Particularly, we would love to see families come and have a fun day racing. There is so much to be learned and enjoyed from a vigorous paddle on this beautiful river which runs through our town. The company is always excellent. The entrance fee of $14 a person covers a super BBQ lunch put on by us, and we try to create enough "classes" so that most people go away with some kind of prize. "Do it, and you get recognized," seems to have become our motto!

THE HUNT IS ON! THE MOLLYOCKETT TREASURE HUNT

Mollyockett was a Pequawket Indian who lived among and befriended the early settlers of Western Maine. Second only to her medical reputation as the great "Indian doctress," was Mollyockett's fame as a storyteller. She was a welcomed guest at many homes, and some of her tales were passed down through the generations

Most famous are the "treasure stories." These include the burying of a kettle of gold in West Paris beneath a trap hung in trees, as well as similar tales involving White Cap in Andover and Hemlock Island in East Rethel

The Mollyockett Treasure Hunt will commemorate those tales by offering a $300 cash prize to the person(s) who finds the hidden treasure, in this case a medallion. The object of the hunt is to decipher a series of clues and locate the medallion, which will be hidden on public land somewhere within a 30-minute drive of Bethel.

Clues, each different and increasingly site-specific, will be published once a week for six weeks in The Bethel Citizen. Clues will also be available on Saturdays on our website bethelcitizen.com or on our Facebook page. This year Mollyockett Days take place on July 20 & 21. The first clue will be published in The Citizen's June 13 edition, the last in the edition of July 18. If the medallion is found prior to July 18, the find will be announced as soon as possible in The Citizen's online (bethelcitizen.com) and print editions.

If the medallion is not found by 10 a.m. on Saturday, July 20, the hunt will be terminated. If it is found (as it always has been), the cash prize of $300 will be presented later that day in the gazebo on the Bethel Common.

Treasure-Hunt Rules

Anyone is eligible to join the thrilling hunt except past winners, employees and immediate family members of Sun Media Group, and contest sponsors or partners. To claim the prize money, you must be 18 years or older.

The finder of the Mollyockett Treasure Hunt medallion must immediately return the medallion to The Bethel Citizen office at 19 Main Street, Bethel (behind the town office), or call (207) 824-2444 for instructions.

The medallion is made of aluminum and is approximately two inches in diameter. It is generally hidden in or attached to something else. The medallion is not buried below ground, searchers do not need to destroy property to find it, this includes digging up the ground. We reserve the right to discontinue the hunt at any time if public property is destroyed.

Searchers also do not need to risk personal injury to find the medallion.

All contestants agree that The Bethel Citizen will have no liability whatsoever and will be held harmless of any injuries, losses, or damages of any kind resulting in whole or in part, directly or indirectly from acceptance, possession, misuse, or use of the prize or participation in this contest.

The winner grants permission for The Bethel Citizen to use his or her name, photograph, voice, and/or

Bethel Art Fair applications available

Calling fine artists and artisan crafters! The Mahoosuc Arts Council is accepting applications from fine artists and artisans for the 24th Annual Bethel Art Fair, Saturday, July 6, 2013 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. (rain date July 7). This 24th Annual event is honoring Artist Jo Baker and will also feature the renowned ARTirondack Chairs on preview with live entertainment and homemade fare by local restaurants.

A variety of artists and fine crafters are being sought whose artwork represents oil, watercolor, pastel, encaustic, pen and ink, charcoal, colored pencil, tempera, acrylic, glassblowing, wood carvings, jewelry and more. There will be judged artist award ribbons of $100 in wallhung, artisan, and photography categories as well as limited purchase awards. Honorable mention ribbons will also be awarded. Booth spaces are limited in the idyllic setting on the historic Bethel Common. All work is required to be of original design and creation of the exhibitor.

Single booths are 10 x 10 feet in dimension and cost $80. Applications must be received by June 15 for inclusion in the Bethel Art Fair program.

Application is also open to food vendors. Food booths are 12x12 feet and cost $100, including electricity. Duplication of items is avoided. Food vendors must supply proof of insurance and are responsible for cleaning up trash on the grounds immediately surrounding the booth.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS ROAD MAINTENANCE SERVICES OXFORD COUNTY UNORGANIZED TERRITORY

The County of Oxford has issued a Request for Proposals for the provision of road maintenance services in the county's unorganized territory over the next three years. This RFP may be viewed and downloaded at the county website, www. oxfordcounty.org.

The deadline for submission of sealed proposals is Friday, June 14, 2013 at 2 PM, at which time they will be opened and available for public inspection. County officials will review proposals at a later date and take whatever action deemed to be in the best interest of Oxford County.

Please contact the county administrator at scole@oxfordcounty.org or 743-6359 ext 1 if questions.

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY REVISED DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT

F-35 OPERATIONAL BASING

The United States Air Force (Air Force) has prepared a Revised Draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) in accordance with 32 Code of Federal Regulations 989,19(3) (e), whereby information supplementing, improving, or modifying the analyses was incorporated, and factual and typographical corrections were made. Thus, an additional 45-day public review period is sought. Alternative locations for beddowns consist of Burlington Air Guard Station (AGS), VT; Hill Air Force Base (AFB), UT; Jacksonville AGS, FL; McEntire Joint National Guard Base (JNGB), SC; Mountain Home AFB, ID; and Shaw AFB, SC. The proposal includes three beddown scenarios at the Air National Guard/Air Force Reserve Center locations, with 18 or 24 F-35A aircraft replacing the existing complement of aging fighter attack aircraft. Three beddown scenarios (24, 48, or 72 F-35As) apply to the active duty bases. At Burlington AGS, Hill AFB, Jacksonville AGS, McEntire JNGB, and Shaw AFB, the F-35As would replace current fighter attack aircraft, irrespective of the scenario. No aircraft would be replaced at Mountain Home AFB; the existing based aircraft would remain. The Air Force Identified Hill AFB and Burlington AGS as the preferred alternatives for the initial operational beddown. The no-action alternative would result in no F-35A beddown at any of these locations at this time. The proposed action also includes basing of personnel needed to operate and maintain the F-35A, and construction and/or modification of facilities on the bases to support F-35A operational aircraft, F-35A aircraft would conduct training flights from the base and in existing airspace associated with each proposed location. No new airspace would be established as part of the proposed action.

The 45-day review and public comment period for the Revised Draft EIS initiated when the Notice of Availability was announced in the Federal Register on 31 May 2013. All comments will be accepted through 16 July 2013 and should be sent by U.S. Postal Service to: HQ ACC/A7PS, 129 Andrews Street, Suite 332, Langley AFB, VA 23665-2769, ATTN: Mr. Nick Germanos. The Revised Draft EIS is available for downloading from the Web at www.accplanning.org

A memorial service to celebrate the life of Eric Sahlberg will take place at 11 a.m. June 15 at the West Parish Congregational Church.

Have you seen this tree?

The discovery of the tallest American Chestnut tree east of the Mississippi right here in Oxford County has led to the following request from the American Chestnut Foundation: Can you tell us where more of these trees are located? The Foundation has believed for many years that pockets of these beautiful, historical trees still exist in and around this area of Maine. These trees may still be in existence because they are in an area where the blight, which is carried by insects, animals, and wind is not present in sufficient quantity to affect them. They may be naturally resistant to the blight, or they may even be in an area that the blight never got near. In any event, finding them is very important.

A good time to look for American chestnut trees is spring through fall, when the leaves make identification easier. The leaves are 5 to 8 inches long and 3 to 4 inches across with wide-spaced saw-teeth on the edges. But the best time to search for American chestnut trees is early July, when this late-bloomer puts on a show. The blossoms are light yellow and form long panicles (catkins). As fall approaches, burs form and drop to the ground, creating winter forage for wildlife. The bur consists of a dense mass of long, slender spines that are painful to touch with your bare hands. The chestnuts that are encased inside are one-half to one inch in diameter with pointed tips and come in groups of two or three nuts in

For an identification sheet and more information, or if you know the location of a chestnut tree, please contact the Oxford County Soil & Water Conservation District at 743-5789, ext. 111, or e-mail us at jean.federico@ me.nacdnet.net.

Gardening lecture at Waterford Library

The 16th annual Sheena Fraser Garden Lecture will take place on Tuesday, June 25, at 7 p.m., at the Waterford Library.

Eli Goodwin, of Goodwin Nursery in Oxford, will discuss "Underused Landscape Plants.

Goodwin grew up in the Oxford Hills area and graduated from Hebron Academy. In 2002, he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in landscape architecture from Cornell University. Before returning home to Maine, he worked in the Boston area for two landscape architectural design firms, developing landscape architectural plans for different institutions like colleges and hospi-

The Sheena Fraser garden lectures are supported by an endowment created by the family and friends of Sheena Fraser, a native of England. Ms. Fraser's love of plants and her garden across from the Waterford Library made the endowment a significant tribute after her untimely death. As well, each year books on gardening and related topics are added to the Sheena Fraser Collection in her memory. This special collection in the Waterford Library now contains more than 100 books on landscaping, vegetable gardening, perennials and annuals, including practical advice for both the master and the beginning gardener.

The program is free and the public is cordially invited to this lecture.

'Making trails'
We came to a large stone wall, at least six feet wide, with some cut stones among the filed ones, a strong boundary line. There was a gap in the wall for a gate and then thick woods and two deep gullies, with a sharp ridge between. We followed this all the way until the land leveled off not far from the old Caswell place. It could be difficult riding but a beautiful trail.

We could hardly wait to get back to clear it. There was no work at all in the long ridge section, just at the ends. In fact we did it one dreary November Sunday in a drizzling light rain and turned down an invitation to a lobster dinner that noon. We can only use this trail during dry spells but it is always a high experience. From any of these side trails we can cross the Middle Intervale road. In some places we go through woods, in others over the Intervale land, and go down to the river bank which we can follow along for whatever length of ride we wish to take before coming home by any of our side trails. The river bank is interesting, with sections of deep swale grass as high as the horses' flanks and sometimes taller. Even B.B. allows us to let the beasts snatch mouthfuls of this as we ride along. There are hawthorn trees here and there, a narrow strip of thick young pines. I remember well clearing a section of this. We had started out in the morning of a clear day. Thundershowers came and thoroughly drenched us but we worked on just the same. Coming home at one-thirty p.m., we stopped to tell our neighbors, the Docks, who had Morgan horses then, that the trail was open. Phyl knew that we hadn't planted sweet corn this year; she picked us two dozen ears. We hurried home, made a quick shingle fire, husked the corn. It cooked as we peeled off our sodden garments. We ate it all, basking in contentment with the contrast between starvation and food, cold wetness and dry heat.

The central section of the eastern side of the mountain is very steep; we have not yet been down over it on foot. We knew from studying our atlas that there was once a road down from Swan Hill into the Chandler Hill valley. There were quite a few homesteads there. The cash crop was apples which were shipped to England. If we could find this road, then we could ride in a fifteen-mile circle from here around the mountain with only a short section of the main highway. We talked about it now and then. Finally on a cold blustery but sunshiny March morning, B.B. called me early; there was a hard crust on the snow, we could travel without snowshoes, which meant speed. We left here at eight a.m., drove up the Chandler Hill road and left the truck and struck off, I trotting to keep up with B.B. I did see some big maples that might be doorvard trees but there was no time to stop. We came quite quickly to a somewhat open space with a very long steep bank to the west. B.B. climbed up over this, not pausing once, quite as though he knew that over the top would be the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow which must be snatched before it vanished away. I hurried after and found to my great surprise that we were on the edge of the open fields of the Buck place, the last house left on Swan Hill. The sun was getting high; the crust would soon begin to melt. We came back a different way than we had climbed up, did see one cellar hole but B.B. was sure that we hadn't found the original roadway. Crust-walking is great fun in itself; you almost seem to fly along after coping with thick, heavy snow all winter. This, combined with the joy of exploration, makes for a special day.
